BEER, WINE RAISE TAX COLLECTIONS

Returns for July Are $70,000,000 More Than Same Month Year Ago.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Aided by $16,444,937 for beer and wine, the government's tax collections for July rose $70,000,000 above the returns a year ago.

The internal revenue bureau said today the receipts also were larger than for June, except for income taxes as quarterly payments are made in that month.

The beer and wine total compared with $13,753,798 for June, showing an increase both in the sales levy and license fees.

Collections from all sources for July aggregated $131,115,996 compared with $51,115,996 in June, showing an increase both in the sales levy and license fees.

The first tax on agricultural products was collected last month and that on wheat products amounted to $388,088.

Stock market activity in July was reflected in collections from transfers of stock which brought in $7,673,345 as compared to $6,193,113 reported in June.

The gasoline tax brought in $15,799,933 as compared with $10,926,739 in June; automobiles and motorcycles $2,014,407; tires and tubes $3,023,940 compared with $2,219,969; telephone and radio taxes $1,085,306 compared with $1,160,754; and checks $3,473,443 compared with $3,233,802.

Tobacco taxes dropped, however, amounting to $34,891,505 as compared with $44,368,772 in June and $34,498,580 in July a year ago.

The increase in the manufacturers' excise taxes collected in July as compared with July a year ago, when the first payments under the billion-dollar tax bill were being received, showed the growth in this form of revenue.

They amounted to $35,531,552 as compared with $1,394,114 in July, 1932.

Taxes imposed by the national industrial recovery act made their first appearance in the list of collections, the levy on dividends returning $658,417 and capital stock tax $7,858,008.

The capital stock tax is a levy of $1 for each $1,000 of adjusted declared value of capital stock of domestic corporations.

The dividend tax imposes a tax of 5 per cent on the receipt of dividends by any person other than a domestic corporation which must be deducted and withheld by the payor corporation.

MACONIAN TO ADVISE ON BRICK MEN'S CODE

MACON, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—William E. Dunwoody, of Macon, has been called to Washington to serve as an advisor to the industrial advisory board in determining a code for the brick industry.

Mr. Dunwoody was war-time administrator for the brick industry and is president of the Standard Brick and Tile Company of Macon.

Junior F. D. R. Tries Cape Work With Bull

SEVILLE, Spain, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the American president, visited a bull farm here today, where he tried his hand at cape work with a small bull.

Franklin was dressed in an Andalusian costume with a wide hat and cap, loaned him by his host. This was his birthday, and at luncheon celebration, Senor Arias, his host, toasted the president of the United States in Manzanilla wine. Later gypsy singers and dancers entertained.

Franklin was given the stuffed head of a fighting bull by his host.

TALMADGE PLANS TO REFUSE FUND UNDER CONDITIONS

statement by T. M. Linder, his executive secretary:

"When I received the telegram from Senator George last night outlining the McDonald plan of turning the highway money over to Georgia, I was very much surprised.

"I think the whole Georgia delegation is satisfied that this was not the proposition of Senator George or the Georgia delegation. I am also satisfied that it was not by any intention the plan of the president.

"I think the whole Georgia delegation and the president wish to see Georgia get her pro rata part of the federal funds, just as the other states receive them without any strings tied to it and without the humiliation of a dictatorship.

"If it takes time for Georgia to be treated right we are not in a hurry. This statement expresses the sentiments of the members of the highway board and of myself as governor."

Plan Not Acceptable.

The governor, Chairman J. J. Mangham and other members of the state highway board made it plain that they will forego any further attempts to obtain immediate release of the fund if it comes into the state under a plan which will provide a different federal government set-up than that in other states sharing in the fund.

Chairman Mangham, who at first said he believed the plan did not call for any additional supervision than the government now exercises, said Friday that after a study of the conditions that the plan as proposed was not acceptable to his board.

"The federal government already has engineers supervising the work done by the highway board with federal funds," Mr. Mangham said. "If these engineers are not satisfactory, they should be fired. Governor Talmadge and the state highway board will not submit to any plan which will subordinate the board."

Mr. Mangham said he felt that the fund would come to the state in due time and that there would be nothing gained by submission to extraordinary conditions.

Board's Status Defined.

"The matter of the legality of the present highway board is in the courts and we have no doubt as to the ultimate decision," Mr. Mangham said. "That my associates and I are duly constituted members of the highway board will be settled to the satisfaction of all by the courts and the federal government then can have no reason or excuse for withholding the fund. Georgia, of course, would like to have it now as we plan to spread it out over the state and get the best possible results, but not under any conditions which do not prevail in other states."

Judge Max L. McRae, of McRae, took the same position.

"Georgia is a sovereign state just like the others," Judge McRae said. "We are not going to be forced to do anything that the other states have not been required to do."

In communications dispatched to Senator George from the state capital at Atlanta, he indicated that nothing short of complete recognition of the state highway department as it is presently constituted would be acceptable to him. In no event, he said, would he consent to the federal government sending a representative to Georgia with full authority over the state board, which, he insisted, should continue the right to execute authority to initiate state road improvement projects. At the same time he raised no objection, of course, to the government continuing its past policy of finally passing the subject before contracts are awarded.

George To See MacDonald.

Senator George, who has acted as intermediary between the administration here and the governor at Atlanta, said today that he would see Mr. MacDonald today, but is expected to discuss the situation with him again tomorrow.

J. W. Barnett, of Athens, and W. C. Yareen, of Moultrie, the director taking the position that it has not been legally determined whether or not the successor to the ousted commissioners constitute the board.

Efforts have been made to have Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, administrator of the road fund, release the money despite Mr. MacDonald's action, but the secretary has declined to do so.

IMPASSE OVER FUND DEVELOPS AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—An impasse evidently developed today between administration officials and Governor Eugene Talmadge over the proposed release of the $100,000,000 federal highway fund. The fund, which is held in the Treasury department, is the subject of political exploitation and exuberance by his enemies in the state. He naturally would not be expected to make himself a party to such a procedure.

Whether the administration would consent to such action being taken is not known, but is highly doubtful, especially should the matter be laid before President Roosevelt for guidance.

Chief Engineer Silent.

At the same time, however, Chief MacDonald in discussing the situation today with The Constitution Washington representative, said he would make no prior commitments as to the person who might be named to supervise Georgia highway expenditures if the proposed plan is adopted. He declared that the bureau of public engineering would have the right to exercise its own discretion in the matter.

Mr. MacDonald also threw further light on the situation by outlining, as he saw it, the scope and authority of the proposed administrator or engineer. Whereas the present government engineer in the state functions only as an advisor, the proposed administrator would be empowered to initiate new projects to the extent of proposing them to the highway board before adoption.

It was not the idea of Senator George in discussing the plan yesterday with Mr. MacDonald, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace or President Roosevelt that the proposed administrator would have so much authority. As contemplated by him, the federal representative in the state would be little more than that now being done by the government engineer in Georgia. Under those circumstances it had been assumed here that the plan would be entirely acceptable to Governor Talmadge and state authorities, and it was on this understanding that the state was made known to the fact that the governor was expected to assent.

Different Views Held.

As it now develops, Senator George and Chief MacDonald had entirely different conceptions of the authority to be given the administrator. The plan itself developed during the conferences the senior Georgia senator held yesterday with Secretary Wallace and Mr. MacDonald preliminary to the senator's later talk with the president. Officials had pointed this course out to Senator George as the only "legal" one open to him in view of the funds pending a final decision on the highway litigation in the state courts.

Since it had the appearance of a compromise, designed, on the one hand, to give Georgia immediate use of the $100,000,000 due it, and as a face saver, on the other, for departmental officials who have been withholding the funds, Senator George felt that it would be acceptable all around. He therefore put it up to the president and gained his tentative approval for having it into effect.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, made it plain that he would order its execution only on condition that the whole procedure was agreeable to Governor Talmadge. He was careful to emphasize that he would not undertake to force any highway fund administration program upon the state without the consent of the governor.

No Solution in Sight.

As the situation stands tonight, in the light of the respective attitudes of the administration officials here and the governor of Georgia, no immediate solution of the problem is in sight. Unless a direct appeal to the president from the full state congressional group is honored, prospects are that the fund will continue to be withheld until all court action is settled over the status of the state board. The department of agriculture, measured in the attitude of Chief MacDonald, while professing to be sympathetic to the road-building needs of Georgia, is yet determined to have its own way in saying how the expenditure of the money shall be supervised.

The president leaves Saturday night for his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., where he plans to resume his summer vacation. It may be that the Georgia delegation will seek an appointment there in pursuance of its original program, provided for at

COTTON GINNERS FACE PRICE PROBE

Senator Patman Says Industry Is Framing Up on Farmers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Claiming cotton ginnings in the south were charging by agreement prices and that they were refusing to investigate.

Patman said there were "a few Al Capones and 'Pretty Boy' Floyds in the cotton oil business who are intimidating the ginner and owners of other cotton oil mills" by making them believe the government was behind the practices they imposed. On the contrary, he said, proposed codes for the industry not only had not been approved but would not be as they included regulations already condemned by the federal trade commission.

He said he had been promised cooperation by agriculture department officials who had received complaints similar to those reaching him. Patman said he also had asked Attorney General James V. Alfred, of Texas, to take immediate action against offenders, and that he himself was leaving for Texas tomorrow to work on the situation in his state.

Ginners refused to enter the conspiracy are threatened with having their charters annulled. Such a threat is ridiculous and cannot be carried out, but if they do enter into such an agreement their charters may be annulled."

Patman said that while codes for the cotton oil mills and gins have been the miners, accustomed to hearing of Roosevelt in Washington but never

Mrs. Roosevelt and Miners' Wives Meet in West Virginia Hill

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt came today to the hills of West Virginia to see for herself how the miners live.

After spending a day trudging around visiting the homes of astonished working folk, she left for home at Hyde Park, N. Y. The visit was unheralded and many of the miners refused to believe that the tall, smiling visitor was the president's wife.

Mrs. Roosevelt wanted to see what progress has been made in relief and rehabilitation work among the miners' families on Cheat Mountain, 12 miles from here. The American Society of Friends, for years active among the miners in social improvements, invited her and without so much as a hint to the White House, the first lady and a woman companion stepped in an automobile and lost themselves to the rest of the world for more than two days.

"Case workers"—friends in active charge of the playgrounds, shops and home training courses being developed in the mining sections—met Mrs. Roosevelt and Lorena Hickok, of democratic national headquarters, when they drove their automobile into the foothills Wednesday night. They guided the visitors up the winding dirt roads to Arnettsville where they spent the night with the L. D. Workes family. Workes is superintendent of a mine there.

Thursday morning Mrs. Roosevelt began her tour, escorted by Workes and a few county and Morgantown officials and with a big lunch basket packed by Mrs. Workes.

The case workers acted as guides for the party. Having worked for years among the miners they know each one by name. In several cases the miners, accustomed to hearing of Roosevelt in Washington but never expecting to see any of them so close to their homes could scarcely believe Mrs. Roosevelt was standing before them.

Mrs. Roosevelt visited the shops where miners' children make things with their hands and the playground where they can swing, see-saw and slide like boys and girls in urban communities. The case workers told her how they were teaching the miners' wives to sew and cook and care for their babies. They told how they were bringing modern science to modern home training into the homes of these miners to ease their toll.

Mrs. Roosevelt appeared to enjoy the tour immensely, friends reported. Once the battered sedan in which she traveled could not go through a wooded one camp. She parked it in a field, and swung cheerfully along with her party for more than a mile to talk to the miners there.

The president's wife smiled her way into the hearts of the sturdy mountain women. At first they were gruffly shy to more than mumble when she greeted them. But as she talked of everyday things that they understood, they warmed to her, and sat with her in their straight-backed chairs, talking more freely until she had a clear picture of how they lived.

Mrs. Roosevelt went away without making any public statement. Her visit was reportedly purely personal and due to her interest in relief work among the people, which has carried her into girls' camps in many parts of the country and among the folk of Virginia.

The city and county officials, invited to escort her because of the own interest in relief, were unanimous in their opinion of Mrs. Roosevelt.

"She was a 'regular guy,'" one of them said, and others smiled the approval.

CLAUDE E. SIMS SR. DROWNED IN FLORIDA

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Claude E. Sims Sr., president of the Sims Tire Company here, and a companion, Bill Johnson, also of Jacksonville, drowned while on a fishing trip between here and Green Cove Springs, it was learned tonight.

Sims, who came here more than 15 years ago, from Georgia, has been prominent in civic and commercial life here. His brother, H. L. Sims, formerly was mayor of Atlanta.

Claude Sims was a city councilman here for several years, and was defeated at a recent election when he ran for city commissioner.

The men went fishing Thursday afternoon and parked their car beside the bridge where they went out by boat. When they did not return to their automobile last night friends began a search and found the overturned boat late today. Sims' body was recovered. Search still was under way for Johnson's body.

The body of Claude E. Sims Sr., brother of Walter A. Sims, state senator, and former mayor of Atlanta, was recovered today at Jacksonville.

Friday, will be brought to Atlanta for interment. Walter Sims said Friday night. The arrangements, which have not been completed, are in charge of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Mr. Sims is survived by his wife, two daughters, Virginia and Dorothy Nell Sims, who were in Brevard, N. C., on a vacation trip when the accidental drowning occurred, and a son, Claude E. Sims Jr., who was in Jacksonville.

His brothers in addition to Walter Sims survive, E. S. Sims, of Nashville, Tenn., and Fred Sims and Ralph Sims, of Atlanta, and three sisters, Miss Annie Mae Sims and Mrs. Charles A. Green, of Atlanta, and Mrs. H. L. Green, of Birmingham.

JANE S. MERRILL WILL CONTESTED

named executor of Miss Merrill's estate.

Local interest in the mystery case, which at times has grown to frenzied excitement, was stirred anew by Mrs. Grist's suit.

The slain woman was the daughter of Ayers Merrill, one-time American ambassador to Belgium. Her beauty and charm were known throughout the old south. Minor was her dashing suitor in those days. Both of them abandoned society in their prime, to live in obscurity for almost 40 years. Friends never learned why they retired. It was rumored that Minor's family had objected to his marrying Miss Merrill.

Miss Merrill was slain last August by persons who ransacked her home and left her body lying in a clump of bushes nearby. A negro, killed in Arkansas while resisting arrest, was named as the slayer because he carried a gun that authorities decided was the one used to kill Miss Merrill.

Murder charges filed against Richard Dana and his housekeeper, Miss Octavia Dockery, residents of a state adjoining Glenbury, were never dropped, however, and Sheriff C. P. Roberts said recently he would present new evidence against these two when the grand jury meets in November.

Barnett Suit to Oust Mangham Postponed

Judge J. B. Hutcheson, of the Talapoosa circuit, Friday postponed the trial of Captain J. W. Barnett's ouster proceedings against Chairman J. J. Mangham, of the state highway board, from August 22 to August 28. The case will be tried at Buchanan, seat of Mr. Mangham's home county of Haralson.

Judge Hutcheson granted the postponement at the request of Attorney General M. J. Yeomans, who said he wanted to use Governor Eugene Talmadge as a witness and the governor would be out of the state next week. The judge also said he felt the case should be started on a Monday in order that it might be completed during one special term of court, lasting a week.

A list of 24 prospective jurors was drawn and approved at Buchanan Friday by Judge Hutcheson.

TARHEEL STATE BOOKS SHOW IRREGULARITIES

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 18.—(AP)—M. C. S. Noble Jr., executive assistant commissioner of revenue, today said "irregularities in the accounts of certain former employees of the revenue department have been discovered and the facts are being reported to the attorney-general's office and the governor."

Dr. Noble refused to enlarge on his brief statement. It was learned authoritatively, however, that the irregularities involving $6,000 in the accounts from 5 to 10 persons who have been discharged by Dr. Noble within the last two months.

A famous brewery making "the smoothest, mellowest, old aged-in-the-wood beer you've ever tasted," which now analyses 3.08, offers the franchise for the State of Georgia to some live wire organization located in Atlanta. Such a distributor should make from $30,000 to $40,000 a year minimum.

There is no requirement of money to be put up for this franchise. The advertising put behind the beer will make it easy to sell. Newspaper advertising plus window and store displays and a radio programme.

Washington Shows Confidence by Withdrawing Destroyer.

HAVANA, Aug. 18.—(AP)—President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes promised Cuba today it would have "justice, law and order" under his administration and urged the closest cooperation by the United States.

The president, chosen provisionally by congress after the flight Saturday of former President Gerardo Machado, declared he expected, no general election before 1934.

Indication of Washington's confidence in the new regime was given today when the United States destroyer Taylor was ordered to leave Havana harbor.

The action was taken on the strength of messages from Ambassador Welles in Havana indicating that conditions throughout Cuba are quieting down in a very encouraging manner and that the presence of warships in Havana harbor was no longer necessary to lend moral support to the Cuban government.

Strike Still Troubles.

Joquin Martinez, the youthful secretary of the treasury, continued efforts late today to end the paralyzing harbor strike, the most serious problem facing the government. Lieutenant Colonel Erasmo Delgado, military commander of Havana province, said a definite solution was expected soon.

Hundreds of tourists have been unable to land from large liners and customs collections have fallen off sharply as a result of the strike. The dock workers' major demands, including wages raised, decrease in the weight of sugar bags, abolition of ferries and a requirement that ships anchor in midstream instead of docking, have been met.

Shipping interests contended the strike was being prolonged by communists.

The relationship of the United States to Cuba should be one of "mutual profit," President de Cespedes said in an interview today.

"We desire you to buy our sugar and we want you to be our best source of supply for many things," he said. "We want to be your largest customer if possible. The importance of having a sugar supply at your door was made evident during the war, and this should make the United States interested in maintaining good conditions in Cuba."

The president expressed his appreciation to President Roosevelt and Ambassador Sumner Welles for the fact that the United States did not intervene when Machado was being overthrown.

Regarding his new cabinet, he said: "I am working with these wonderful young men who are in complete sympathy with the government. The whole administration is vibrating with new life, new blood and new ideas."

NEW CHURCH SCHOOL OPENS DOORS TODAY

The new church school of the Holy Comforter will open at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning at corner of Atlanta and Pullman streets, with E. V. Harkness, former superintendent of the St. Philip's cathedral church school, directing a large corps of teachers. They will use the same series of lessons used by Mr. Harkness at the St. Philip's school, which is authorized by the national department of religious education of the Episcopal church.

In making the announcement, Mr. Harkness said the new school has the approval of the bishop of the diocese, of the vestry and the priest in charge, the Rev. Woolsey E. Couch. In addition to the school, a prayer service will be held at 8 o'clock.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The public works administration announced today that Armour C. Polk, of Birmingham, Ala., has notified President Roosevelt he would be unable to serve on the Alabama public works advisory board. A successor will be named shortly.

3,841 MILES MADE BY THE SILVER FORD

The Silver V-8 Ford Economy car on Friday had made 3,841 miles of its 10,000-mile economy run, or more than a third of the distance, and this without accident or delay, it was announced Friday.

The car, which is running in and out of Atlanta to other Georgia towns, has averaged around 20 miles to a gallon of gasoline, and has not been supplied with oil more than the usual allowance for every thousand miles.

This run was put on by the Ford Motor Company to demonstrate the advance in modern automobile engineering, and so far the test, the company announced, has been eminently satisfactory.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Alex P. Clary tossed aside his inhibitions.

Then he strode on, cracking windows right and left.

By the time the police reached him, he had smashed eight.

"Turn me loose and I'll smash every window in this town," Clary told police. "I'm mad at the world."

He was booked on a charge of malicious mischief.

Big Crowd of Georgians To Attend Chicago Fair Celebration Tuesday

A large crowd of Georgians is assured for Georgia Day at the Century of Progress, Chicago, Tuesday, August 22, Scott W. Allen, chairman of the Georgia Century of Progress commission, said Friday.

Father of Expanding Universe Idea Will Lecture on Theory at Capitol

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—New advances in man's understanding of the past and future of his mysterious universe, a puzzle so far unsolved, may be made here next winter as a young Belgian priest looks up at the stars.

The priest, world-famous as a scientist for his theories of how the universe is put together and whence it came, is Abbe George Le Maitre, of the University of Louvain. He is one of perhaps half a dozen scientists who have had a "universe named after them."

Abbe Le Maitre will spend the coming academic year lecturing on "Astrophysical Applications of the Theory of Relativity" at the Catholic University of America here, as a visiting professor. Among scientists his fame ranks with that of Professor Albert Einstein. Abbe Le Maitre's theory that the universe is expanding at terrific speed has been declared by Einstein to be "the most satisfactory theory yet presented."

A giant atom, in which all the material in the universe is now known to be concentrated, is Abbe Le Maitre's explanation of how the universe began. This huge atom exploded, and the fragments still are flying apart 10 billion years after.

That is a nutshell picture of the "Le Maitre universe." There also have been the "Einstein universe," the "De Sitter universe," and others trying to explain how things came to be as they are today.

There are two forces at work in the universe, working against each other, Abbe Le Maitre explained on his last visit to this country, last January. One is gravitation, the force that holds us anchored to earth, the other is expansion.

OGBURN EXPECTS FRIDAY'S TRAFFIC PUTS 10 PERSONS ON ROLL OF HONOR

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Satisfaction that his resignation as director of the consumers' board of the NRA would result in the effect he desired was expressed today by Professor William F. Ogburn, University of Chicago social scientist.

He denied his resignation from the Washington post last week was caused by any feud, and said it was aimed to attract attention of the opinion he held that no adequate provision for safeguarding the interest of the consumer had been set up under the recovery program.

"The general policies of the NRA are admirable," Dr. Ogburn said. "But the weakest link is the provision for protection of the consumer. The emergency nature of this act must soon give away to a long time set up. What is needed is a comprehensive system of public checks on the reasonableness of prices which are fixed without restraints of competition. There must be an adequate organization for gathering and interpreting the facts and figures relating to prices and quality. This should not be relegated to a minor role."

Georgia Milk Pact Ready, Bridges Says

Georgia's milk agreement has been approved by officials of the United States department of agriculture and will be signed Monday by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Fred T. Bridges, assistant commissioner of agriculture, said Friday.

Mr. Bridges said that he had been officially informed that the setup for the entire state was ready for Mr. Wallace's approval. Actual terms of the agreement, including prices, were not available, but Mr. Bridges said it included drastic penalties for violations. It will apply to producers, distributors and consumers. The Georgia agreement is a substitute for the various local agreements originally planned.

RE-EMPLOYMENT GROUP FOR GEORGIA SELECTED

Cator Woolford, state chairman of the national re-employment service, announced Friday the appointment of Ronald Ransom, Hal G. Stanley and Ryburn G. Clay as members of the Georgia re-employment council. He said Mr. Ransom would be assigned to serve as state relief director. Mr. Stanley as chairman of the department of industrial relations at the state capital and Mr. Clay as a member of the state board of public works.

Mr. Woolford said the council will provide a convenient means for coordinating related activities of three federal agencies in the state—public works administration, federal relief administration and federal re-employment. He added that so far the re-employment service in the state has no jobs.

Three men aboard the craft leaped into the water and were picked up by the cutter. They were taken to Campden, N. J., by coast guards and placed in jail to await a hearing.

KLINGLER APPOINTED KENTUCKY GENERAL

H. J. Klingler, vice president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, has been made a general on the staff of Governor Ruby Laffoon, of Kentucky, it was announced on Thursday evening at the Chevrolet banquet at the Biltmore hotel.

Vern Murray, zone manager of the Louisville district, presented the honor. He said only five generals have been commissioned by Kentucky governors.

Officials of the Chevrolet organization began their two-day session here Thursday and adjourned Friday.

COUZENS HITS U. S. IN BANK CLOSINGS

Senator Says Government Waited Prosperity, Did Not Enforce Law.

DETROIT, Aug. 18.—(AP)—United States Senator James Couzens charged before the jury investigating bank closings here today that the suspensions were preceded by an "orgy of consolidation based on fictitious values" and asserted the banks would have closed long before they did but for the government attitude of "waiting for prosperity to come around the corner."

Speaking bluntly and with emphatic poundings of the witness table, the white-haired senior senator from Michigan said the government preferred to wait for prosperity rather than "enforce the law and close the banks."

It was Senator Couzens' second day before the jury which for weeks has been investigating the closing of the city's two largest national banks.

He charged that the Union Guardian Trust Co., of Detroit, accepted deposits for 20 days after its officials knew it was insolvent; that the closed First National Bank-Detroit stands to lose a large part of $22,100,000 in loans made to directors and employees through "poor judgment of federal bank examiners;" that the trust company "jockeyed" the children's fund of Michigan—a $10,000,000 beneficence which he founded—out of $200,000; demanded an investigation of the trust company with a view to criminal prosecution, and declared that Wilson W. Mills, former chairman of the First National board, "wrecked" the plans of Henry Ford to establish two new banks here.

The Ford banks would have taken over the assets of the First National and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, now under federal receiverships, their closings the subject of the grand jury inquiry.

"Public officials, he said, permitted the Detroit banks to rot; they opened despite their knowledge that the institutions were unsound "on the theory that prosperity was just around the corner."

"Public officials, from the president down, were holding out that hope to the people," he said. "Washington did not approve of the condition of the banks. But the bad loans already had been made. The comptroller of the currency criticized the First National Bank-Detroit management, but if the comptroller had taken action to eliminate these matters the bank would have had to close, because its capital was seriously affected. Washington had to answer or to insist on the letter of the law and close the banks. This was not an easy question. They decided to wait. I don't have to agree with their action, but that was what they did."

"All during the depression the administration was in the hands of the republicans. All during that time it was under control of my good friend Mr. Mellon (Andrew Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, with whom Couzens frequently was at odds) and Ogden L. Mills. They were dictating the policy of the treasury department. All the time they were violating the law in respect to their attitude toward national banks. Senator Carter Glass held subcommittee hearings in 1932 and got testimony from former Comptroller Pole and F. G. Awall, his deputy, that many banks were insolvent but were not closed because that would have wrecked the communities."

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASEN

Benito the Peasant.

until the problem solves itself, as will be done in time.

If there were any question about the honesty, the ability or the wisdom of the present state highway board it would be a different matter—but no department of the state's government was ever administered by a more competent board.

Assurance by the federal highway board that no exception will be made against Georgia in the general plan of federal supervision will promptly solve the problem and will put this money to work.

If there is no "monkey business" going on behind the scenes, such assurance will be given without further delay.

REGISTER TODAY!

The registration books for September's municipal primary close at noon today. Every man or woman worthy to be described as a good citizen and whose name does not already appear on the registration lists, should put it there this morning.

The voter who deliberately fails to register and participate in the election of those to direct public affairs, denies himself the right of participation in the most sacred right of citizenship.

In disfranchising themselves by failure to register, these apathetic citizens place themselves in a position where they cannot object if the government under which they live does not go to suit them.

Especially is it vital at times like this, when governments generally are faced with difficult and intricate problems of all kinds, that the election of good officials should be assured by a full expression by the people at the polls.

Every good citizen of Atlanta should register this morning, if he or she has not already done so.

STOPPING A NUISANCE.

The police board is to be commended for its action in ruling that no more police "courtesy" cards, of whatever description, be issued without its sanction.

These cards have been used as one of the levers to extract money from Atlanta businessmen on the ground that their contributions would go to swell the police relief fund.

As has been revealed in the hearings now going on before a special councilmanic committee, only 25 per cent of these subscriptions ever reach this fund. The balance, with the exception of the comparatively small publication costs of a so-called "police annual," has gone into the pockets of professional solicitors.

Many of those approached have testified that they thought they were contributing in whole or part to the relief fund, as the solicitors bore letters stating that "the department is engaged in a drive for subscriptions for the Atlanta police benefit fund."

Such schemes should not be permitted, and the action of the police board in putting an end to the "courtesy" card deception should, and undoubtedly will, be followed by the banning in future of all schemes by which the promoters get the bulk of the money and the proposed beneficiaries but little.

These funds are meritorious and should be liberally supported by the people of the city, but the subscriptions should be made direct to them and not in a manner which permits the greater part to be diverted to professional solicitors.

Marry in haste and get a divorce at leisure.

To nail a lie, you have to keep on hammering.

Some men have written a book of telephone numbers.

A New York lawyer has been arrested for using gas. But he wasn't addressing a jury.

Nations owe Uncle Sam 11 billions of war debts. And the figure "eleven" is supposed to be a lucky number.

It is easy to surprise a woman. However, very few are ever surprised to the extent they are speechless.

The world's radio audience is estimated at 160,000,000. So it's that many people who don't like crooners.

Anybody can make a mistake, but it takes a smart person to explain one in a satisfactory manner to the boss.

Now with things picking up, it is going to be a little harder endeavoring to keep up with those darn Joneses.

There are germs on paper money, says an authority. But very few people retain any paper money long enough to get familiar with a germ.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

CABINET WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The way things are working out inside, Mr. Roosevelt is his own cabinet. The policies of individual cabinet members mean nothing. They are merely front-office men taking orders from the boss.

The other day the president announced that the state department had a plan for economic rehabilitation of Cuba. Department officials ran around looking for it. None had ever heard of it.

The fact was that a brain trustee (probably Charles Tausig) had worked up the plan in conjunction with Mr. Roosevelt. They forgot to tell the state department about it.

Later they turned it over to the department for execution.

Under this system it makes no difference that State Secretary Hull personally champions an international policy at variance with the domestic Roosevelt program. Or that Treasury Secretary Woodin (still absent) is a conservative in the midst of progressives. They can have their own ideas about gold standards and tariffs. They can even air these views in public speeches.

When the time comes to act, Mr. Roosevelt does the acting, regardless of their speeches.

FRIENDSHIP The only man who seems to be getting bigger in the inner cabinet picture is Interior Secretary Ickes.

Mr. Roosevelt is leaning on him more and more. They hardly knock each other at the staff. They have become fast friends. Ickes has been calling at the White House recently as often as the rest of the cabinet put together.

His job ranks seventh in the cabinet set-up. It has jumped to first importance by the addition of the public works drive.

Mr. Roosevelt looked around carefully for a man to handle that work. He realized it would be almost impossible to spend three billions in such a way without stirring up a breath of scandal somewhere. A man who is easily tempted could get rich quick without trying very hard.

The president ran through a big list before he decided to make Ickes take the job.

RADIO GOAT If you want to see how a bull reacts to a red flag just go up and say, "Charlie Curtis!" to anyone in the Mexican division at the state department. You can get the same results at the radio commission.

They are nettled at the big victory Curtis won for goat glands at the recent American radio conference in Mexico City.

It seems the Mexicans did not know the difference between a vice president and an ex-vice president. They received Curtis as if he were Garner. President Rodriguez gave him a formal audience. Sundry parties were held in his honor by the foreign minister and other officials.

That was all water on his wheel. He was in Mexico as an employed counsel for Dr. Brinkley, goat gland specialist whose radio station was chased out of Kansas to a point just across the line in Mexico.

Our embassy, under instructions from the state department, supported the American radio delegation protesting against interference from Brinkley's Mexican station. The Mexicans stuck by Curtis, Brinkley and goat glands. They won.

The only affirmative action to come out of vast business before the conference was the triumph of the goats.

ARMY Three years ago, Mr. Hoover started economizing in government by ordering abandonment of useless army posts.

Chief of Staff MacArthur listed 52 forts on which money could be saved. Thirty-two were occupied by troops. They were to be abandoned. The rest were to be sold or transferred.

Today, only five have been abandoned and only a few sold or transferred.

$5,000 IS SOUGHT FOR SEWER STUDY

Committee Will Ask Council for Fund; En- gineering Data Needed.

Council Monday will be asked to set up $5,000 to compile engineering data necessary to push Atlanta's claims for $300,000 for sewer improvements, it was decided Friday afternoon by the finance committee of council.

At the same time Clark Donaldson, chief of construction, notified the streets committee of council that additional data must be prepared for other engineering projects, but told the committee that because of the urgent necessity for sewers and the present condition of the municipal treasury, he would not press other requests. He will concentrate solely on sewers in so far as his department is concerned, he said.

First applications already have been filed with federal authorities and have been sent to Washington, Donaldson said. Formulation of later applications which seek additional data, however, has forced the department to make other surveys. These will be begun as soon as council provides the money.

Wage Paper Discussed.
The finance committee Friday afternoon took the following additional actions:

1. Referred to a special subcommittee to be named by Alderman E. A. Gilliam, chairman, proposals by Councilman John A. White to establish an eight-hour maximum work day for virtually all departments of the municipality, and to set a minimum wage. Several changes in the basic pay of employees also will go to the same committee.

2. Set up $1,500 for the purchase of a lot for a new fire station near the second and third ward lines as proposed by Councilman G. Dan Bridges, and voted $400 to resurface Bass street in the third ward.

3. Referred to the October finance committee a proposal of the police department to abolish the cadet police system and elect all cadets to the regular force. It is estimated it would take $18,000 for the procedure.

Vacation Fund Voted.
4. Voted $11,254 for vacations in the water department with a stipulation that the figure must be absorbed during the year through pay roll savings.

5. Set up $1,000 for construction of a culvert at Matthews and Altona places.

6. Referred to the October finance committee a proposal by Councilman H. Parks Rusk that all fines imposed on grocers for violation of the closing law passed by council be refunded.

7. Voted to pay Charles L. Chosewood Jr. $839.30 as royalties on atoms used from the Chosewood quarries in 1930 and 1931. Chosewood claimed about $2,400.
8. Referred to City Attorney James L. Mayson a report of Ham Eidson, city auditor, showing that the Southern Bell Telephone Company owes the city $8,840, representing 1 percent of a gross receipt tax, which Eidson claims the company failed to return in 1932.

Court Order Ties Up Fox Theater Receipts

Receipts of the Fox theater were tied up Friday by Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court, except for payment of actual current operating expenses, pending a hearing August 23 on a petition for a receiver.

The suit was filed by the Gershon Printing Company, the Gershon Printing Company, DeVoe & Reynolds Co., Inc., and Enrico Leide, manager of the theater, as creditors, against the Southeastern Amusement Enterprises, Inc., of Florida, and the Atlantic Amusement Company, of Fulton county.

The plaintiffs charge that the Southeastern company, unable to pay its debts, transferred its lease on the Fox to a "dummy" corporation, the Atlantic company, and that the amusements company, which has never accepted assignment of the lease but has leased the building to another company effective September 1.

Appointment of a receiver is asked to conserve alleged profits of $200 to $300 a day, and an injunction is sought to prevent the defendants from interfering with the receiver. The plaintiffs also ask that the purported transfer of the lease be set aside.

YOUTH BADLY INJURED WHEN HEADHITS BRIDGE

Harris Waddell, 14, of 232 Richardson street, was severely injured Friday morning when his head struck a low bridge while standing in the rear of a truck. He was on the way to Griffin to help collect papers for Legion of Justice charities, of which his mother, Mrs. A. M. Sears, is an officer. The youth was treated for a fractured skull at the Strickland hospital in Griffin and brought to Grady hospital here, where his condition was said to be serious Friday night.

Money Offered for Protection Of Family Whose Head Is Hurt

Here's money offered you—money when you or those whom you love need it most.

How would your family fare if you should be killed in a traffic accident today? Would you be greatly inconvenienced if you were injured and your income promptly terminated?

Pause and think of these things. At the same time, if you are not covered with The Constitution Insurance, are you thoughtful, are you negligent, or just indifferent? Some one of these things has caused you not to have this insurance, because it is within the reach of all.

You know you should have it, and why delay another day? Act today—for tomorrow may be too late.

The ever-growing accident wave imperils every man and woman in the nation. Whether you live in city, town or country; whether you are a motorist or a pedestrian, or on the railroad train or steamboat, the menace hangs over your head.

Insure! Insure as cheaply and as efficiently as you can! The cheapest and most efficient insurance tendered to the reading public is offered you by The Atlanta Constitution.

A sample of some of the payments made to some of our subscribers who were thoughtful enough to take out The Atlanta Constitution travel and pedestrian accident insurance:

John T. Adams Jr., Atlanta, Ga., was injured in an automobile collision on May 21, this year, causing complete fracture of right patella, minor cuts and bruises over body. He was totally disabled something over 10 weeks, for which he drew from the North American Accident Insurance Company $105.71.

Horace Carson, Atlanta, Ga., was injured in an automobile accident on May 23, this year, causing fractured rib and other bruises which totally disabled him for four weeks, for which he was paid $40 by the North American Accident Insurance Company.

G. W. Lebrist, Atlanta, was injured as a pedestrian crossing the street when struck by a car, was totally disabled for one week, for which he was paid by the North American Accident Insurance Company $10. The $10 payment is very small, yet it is better than not being protected. This accident might have caused a total disablement for several weeks and $10 for each week during the total disablement would come in mighty handy to anyone.

The insurance offered you through

The Atlanta Constitution is issued by the North American Accident Insurance Company, of Chicago, Ill. This company, during the last several years, has paid to Constitution subscribers and members of their families over $180,000.

The insurance is offered to subscribers and immediate dependent members of a subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 65 on the one subscription going into the home at the small registration fee of 20 cents with application and 10 cents per month thereafter in addition to the subscription price, or $1 each per policy per year in advance, to subscribers who live in Atlanta; and to subscribers outside Atlanta and suburbs the rate is $1 per year per policy in addition to the subscription price.

The policy The Constitution offers you provides for payment of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specific accidents, heavy sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability resulting from accidents set forth in the policy, which is at the rate of $43.33 per month. All this for the small fee, as stated above—just about 21-2 cents a week, and it is offered to old and new subscribers alike.

In sending application for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation, and if beneficiary is desired the full Christian name of beneficiary must be given and relationship of same to the insured.

The youth was arrested in a Highland avenue apartment house and Mrs. Ruth Powell, 42, said to be his aunt, also was arrested. The surgical instruments were recovered. COTTON GAIN VITAL, SAYS WESTBROOK

Farm Relief Program De- pendent on Quick Price Advance, Cobb Told.

MOULTREE, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Difficultly will arise in putting into effect a farm adjustment program next year unless immediate action is taken to boost prices, E. C. Westbrook, cotton and tobacco specialist of the Georgia extension service, has warned Cotton Administrator C. A. Cobb.

Mr. Westbrook wrote a letter, pointing out "cotton is selling on the Moultrie market this morning for 8 cents a pound. The recent decline in the price of cotton has greatly discouraged the farmers with the farm relief program."

Westbrook told Cobb that "if something is not done immediately to increase the price of cotton and give the farmers some additional assurance of the success of the program, it will be rather difficult to put into effect a program for next year and other years."

"I know you are doing everything possible to work out some method to bring about an improvement in the present situation," the letter continued. "I want to urge that no time be lost in bringing plans to this end to an early conclusion."

Westbrook called attention to a telegram sent Cobb last Saturday by A. W. Simpson Jr., which read: "Cotton prices and gin situation here is critical. Independent ginners are informed by old men that the gin code prohibited storage of seed by the ginner. Are these the facts of code? This situation is forcing farmers to sell on a depressed market or store at home at extra expense. They cannot afford to do either. This forced marketing has resulted in $12 to $14 for seed with meal at $26 to $30 and hulls $10 to $12. Such prices are ruinous to farmers. Action on this will greatly affect cotton program in the future. Can something be done immediately?"

Westbrook added: "We have not had an answer to this wire. We would greatly appreciate an early expression from you regarding this situation."

RULING OF COURT BARS FRAUD CLAIM TRANSFER

The court of appeals ruled Friday that claims of alleged fraud could not be assigned to some other person by the allegedly injured party.

The ruling was on a case of the Decatur Development Company against J. W. and A. W. Fener to recover the value of drafts deposited in the old Decatur Bank & Trust Company which was taken over by the state banking department and then sold to the developing company, it being claimed that a fraud had been perpetrated regarding the drafts. The court ruled that if a fraud had been perpetrated it was against the bank and the assignees could not recover.

In another case the court of appeals held Jay C. Carter, an employee of the Georgia Power Company, was due insurance from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company for injuries allegedly received at the hands of a striking engineer of the company. He claimed that he was hurt by a striker and that the injury was in line of duty and the court upheld the claim.

PHYSICIANS ASK JURY TO ADOPT ELLIS LAW

Resolutions urging the Fulton county grand jury to recommend adoption of the Ellis health law, in Fulton county were approved unanimously Friday night by the public health commission of the Fulton County Medical Society, acting for the society.

The resolutions will be turned over to the July-August term grand jury, and, if the jury adopts the recommendation, the Ellis health law goes into effect in Fulton, the May-June term jury having already approved the proposal. Only two recommendations of successive grand juries are necessary.

Under the Ellis health law, all matters of health and sanitation in Fulton county would be placed directly and entirely under the county board of health, insuring a well qualified and full-time physician as commissioner of health.

In addition to placing all health and sanitation authority in the county under the board of health, the Ellis health law would place the county in closer co-operation with state and federal health activities, it was said. The state health department and the federal health service would be connected with the county board purely in an advisory capacity.

RICE GROWERS, MILLERS SEEK HIGHER PRICES

LAKE CHARLES, La., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Southern rice growers, millers and distributors drove forward today toward a goal of better prices under controlled action in meeting here with A. J. J. E. Broussard, Beaumont, Texas, spokesman for the Southern Rice Millers' Association, said millers had agreed 100 per cent to pay prices for this year's crop on parity with average prices for pre-war years 1909 to 1914 in line with the farm administration's program. The growers roundly applauded his statement.

Colonel Is Cited for Gallantry On Deed Performed 33 Years Ago

FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—An agonizing six-hour journey over a tortuous trail 83 1/2 years ago brought a feeling of satisfaction to a young first sergeant because a duty had been performed.

Today a color received a citation for gallantry because of having successfully completed that trip.

He is Colonel William B. Wallace, chief of the tank section of the infantry school here. In 1900 he was First Sergeant Wallace of Company G, 30th infantry, United States volunteers, stationed in the Philippines.

He worked his way that night through dense jungle along the Lucbanan trail in southern Luzon, with two companions and a lieutenant, wondering what moment a bolo would dash across the back of his neck. The trip began at 9 p. m. and ended at 3 a. m.

Though he has stayed with the army continuously and the years have seen his promotion from the grade of first sergeant of a line regiment to a full colonel, head of one of the most important branches of the world's largest school of arms, Colonel Wallace has not forgotten the night of his first duty. The trip began at 9 p. m. and ended at 3 a. m.

At the time of this action Colonel Wallace had served about 15 months in the army, having been for one year in Cuba with volunteer organization. He enlisted for service in the Philippine Islands in August, 1899, and was headquarter, Sergeant Wallace and stayed with the army since that time.

Erstwhile Star of Comic Opera Ends Life as Macon Shoemaker

MACON, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Simon G. Sharp, once a favorite of the London and New York comic opera stages who turned to shoemaking just because he wanted to "settle down," was buried here today for his beloved Poland.

Death came in a Macon hospital yesterday after several months of ill health.

He was born of Jewish parentage in Lodz, Poland, 55 years ago. In his early youth he went to London and his fine tenor voice soon placed him on the stage.

It wasn't long before he was sending the folks back home copies of the London newspapers, telling much about the uprisings and the "light opera" and the "light opera."

The young singer met Gussie Rosen, of Rarod, Poland, in Liverpool and they were married 24 years ago.

Four years later they came to New York and Sharp was starred in comedy roles of many light operas of the day.

After awhile, with age coming on, he began wanting a home and prosaic life far from the footlights. For some reason, shoe pegging had always fascinated him. Maybe that wouldn't be such a bad calling.

He studied the business of making footwear in several factories and then launched upon the trade of building shoes for crippled and deformed people.

In 1917 the family, increased by two small children, came to Macon. Sharp didn't have a great deal of money and for a while he was employed as a shoe mender in a shop. Later he opened his own shop.

He couldn't forsake the footlights entirely. Each year he gave a number of benefit concerts and took part in numerous amateur musical productions for charity.

McDonald Loses Fight For Commission Post

LAGRANGE, Ga., Aug. 18.—Another of the suspended members of the Georgia public service commission lost the first round of his fight to regain his lost post here today when Judge Lee B. Wyatt, in Troup superior court, sustained a demurrer of J. T. (Toby) Daniel to ouster proceedings filed by Walter R. McDonald, of Augusta.

Judge Wyatt sustained the Daniel demurrer after an all-day argument. The action was in the nature of a warrant proceeding.

Julie Felton, of Montezuma, who represented McDonald, said he would appeal the decision. Daniel was represented by Assistant Attorneys General J. J. E. Anderson and B. D. Murphy.

WEDDING CLIMAXES RILEY-STORK CASE OUTDOING FICTION

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Bart A. Riley, attorney, and Mrs. Adelaide Stork, of Miami and Baltimore, today contemplated a honeymoon trip around the world, their immediate objective being Havana. They were married here yesterday, climax to a story which, in many respects, rivals fiction.

Riley was Mrs. Stork's attorney last December when she sought a divorce at Baltimore from Winston Stork. He also was visiting in Mrs. Stork's home here when Mrs. Fred Riley, now divorced from the attorney, her son, Bernard, and Jimmy Duffy, an employee, broke into the Stork home and attacked Mrs. Stork and Riley.

Mrs. Riley was sentenced to ten years in prison for her part in the attack, Duffy was sentenced to seven years, and Bernard was placed on probation.

All three were granted pardons almost simultaneously with the wedding at Miami of Riley and Mrs. Stork.

PUPPY'S BITE IS FATAL TO TENNESSEE CHILD

Physicians said his death late last night was due to rabies.

The child was bitten on the hip three weeks ago but his parents did not learn of it until Saturday, when the boy developed a high temperature.

COTTON GINNERS PLAN INCREASE IN PRICES

Flat Price of $5 Per Bale
Proposed at Athens
Conference.

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 18.—Cotton ginning prices in this section will be increased if proposals discussed at a meeting of northeast Georgia ginners here today are made effective.

The prevailing price per 500-pound bale ranges from $3 to $5 per bale, but the recommendation made here today, if adopted by ginners, will fix a $5 flat price for ginning each 500-pound bale. Where the grower furnishes the wrapping the price will be $4.50.

The meeting at the Georgian hotel was held to discuss standardization of ginning prices until the code proposed by the National Cotton Ginners' Association is adopted. Price standardization in the ginning industry has become vitally necessary it was claimed.

One hundred and fifty ginners attended the session. Acceptance of the price recommended here is not mandatory on ginners but is suggested as a means of bringing about standardization.

E. N. Watkins, Dublin, secretary of the State Ginners' Association, who presided over the meeting of northeast Georgia ginners, said that definite action is expected on the proposed code early next week. Representatives from the national association have been called to Washington for a conference with the NRA next Tuesday.

BLUEGE'S HIT ENDS CONTEST IN TENTH, 6-4

Relief Pitching of Heving and Wyatt Thwarted by Ossie.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(AP)—A single to center field by Ossie Bluege with the bases filled in the tenth inning scored two runs and gave the Washington Senators a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Washington Senators a 6-to-4 victory over the White Sox today and a new record for winning streaks in the American league this season. It was their tenth straight victory and swept the series here.

by Joe Heving and Whitlow Wyatt. They had combined to retire 19 Senators in order after Lefty Miller, erstwhile Washington Nemesis, had been chased from the mound for the second day in succession.

The Senators sprinkled three singles among four walks to score their other four runs off Miller in the third inning.

Jack Russell relieved Al Thomas in the seventh inning when the Chicagoans tied the score at four-all and held them to two singles in four innings. He was the winning pitcher.

As Yanks Win.
ST. LOUIS, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The New York Yankees acted like the team which won the world championship last fall again.

Wally Hebert and Hank McDonald in a vicious fourth-inning attack and scored enough runs to beat the Browns, 8 to 3, and get an even break for the series. The victory still left them 7 1-2 games behind the Washington Senators, who contin-

The Yanks had a bad scare in the midst of their big rally when Babe Ruth, at the plate for the second time in the stanza, was struck above the right ankle by one of McDonald's piches and was bruised badly enough to make him leave the game. Tie Babe dropped to the ground when hit and for a moment the Yanks and the fans feared a broken leg. Examination revealed, however, that the injury was nothing more than a painful bruise and Ruth is expected to return to action tomorrow or within a few days.

TEN INDICTED IN RACE TRACK DOPE SCANDAL

Federal Jury Strikes Blow at Dishonest Owners of Horses.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(AP)—A federal grand jury today struck a stunning blow in the nationwide race track "doping" scandal, accusing two men of giving narcotics to race horses.

Five indictments were returned, each naming one to three persons and charging violations of the Harrison anti-narcotic law and the internal revenue laws by possession of narcotics unlawfully procured.

Outstanding among the defendants were Hal Price Hendley, Lexington, Ky.; turfman; A. A. Brown, Bens. Nev., a widely known horse owner; Benjamin Creech, Lexington, Ky., manager of the stable owned by his wife, Mrs. Creech; Jack Howard, also of Lexington, who also manages his wife's stables; Ivan H. Parke, former noted jockey and now a trainer; and Dr. Nelson Edward Southard, a veterinarian of Louisville, Ky.

Baroni was named in the indictments with James Heshlin, an exercise boy; Howard, with Charles Mitchell, an exercise boy; Hendley, with Marvin Hardin, an exercise boy, and Creech with Parke and William Paine, also an exercise boy.

Bonds for each of the defendants was set at $5,000.

Two hundred and fifty race horses were given narcotics at tracks in Chicago and through the south and east, the indictments charged, but only a few were mentioned. Some were among the best-known thoroughbreds on the American turf. They included Marion, Ebony Lad, Spud, Adelaide A. Liqueur, Portofino, Dr. Parrish, Threat, Louie Dear, Islam, Technique, Big Beau, Street Singer, Xifin and Snapkick.

Specifically, the indictments charged the following overt acts:

Mitchell and Howard—Administering drugs to several race horses at Hialeah and Arlington Park and possession of narcotics.

Dr. Southard—Possessing, possessing and concealing narcotics.

Hendley and Hardin—Possessing and possessing narcotics.

Baroni and Heshlin—Doping and possessing narcotics.

Creech, Parke and Paine—Doping and possessing narcotics.

Mitchell, Dr. Southard, Parke and Paine were arrested in a raid at Arlington Park July 20.

THREE SENTENCED.

Three others seized in the Arlington Park raid already have been sentenced to Leavenworth penitentiary on charges of possession of narcotics. They were Chauncey Berger, for three years; Jack Fride, for two years, and William Connery, for one year. They were stable hands.

Government investigators said the horses were "doped" usually about 45 minutes before the race if they were wanted to win and a longer time before if they were expected to lose. The doping must be carefully timed, they explained, or it would have an opposite effect to that desired. The narcotics "pepped" them up for a time, but the effect soon wears off and leaves the animals groggy.

Free Tennis Lessons Offered Here Today

The second of a series of free class instruction for Atlanta boys and girls under 14 years of age will be offered this morning at the Piedmont Driving Club by Ronald J. Kappie, professional.

The first class was held last Saturday morning and attracted only a small number. It is believed, however, that today's turnout will warrant continuance of the weekly classes.

Kappie, a well-known professional, is keenly interested in the development of tennis here. He believes that with the young players well schooled in the fundamentals, Atlanta will eventually become the south's tennis center.

The opportunity to receive lessons free of charge is perhaps the greatest ever offered young players here.

HAMM DEFEATS BRYAN EASILY

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Hudson Hamm, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., sprang the first upset of the mid-district tennis tournament here today by beating Lefty Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn., in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Hamm was in great form and fairly blew Bryan off the court with his smashing brand of play. Hamm was seeded No. 4 and Bryan No. 2.

Hamm, by virtue of his victory, meets Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., for the singles championship. Hines is defending champion.

In a semi-finals doubles match today Hines and Butz Boulevard, Tallahassee, Fla., defeated Arthur Hendrix Lakeland, Fla., and George W. Adams, Okla., 7-5, 9-7, 7-5. The other semi-finals match between Bryan and Peyre Kennedy, Spartanburg, and Hamm and Ray White, Miami, Fla., was ended by darkness for the second time in as many days. Each team had won two sets before the match was halted.

SKELTON BEATS CHECKER CHAMP

Harold Almond, of Atlanta, three times checker champion of Georgia and present holder of the title, last night was eliminated from the 1933 tournament by Webster Skelton, also an Atlanta man, in the only series of games played in the third round at the Henry Grady hotel.

Skelton won by the score of 4-2, thereby placing him in the quarter-finals of a new champion this year. Skelton's play was brilliant all through Friday, as he won, not only from Almond, but knocked out W. H. Patterson and A. S. Mitchell, both of whom formerly held the title. All of Friday's games were good, some of the new players making good showings in their first tournament efforts.

The third round will be continued today.

Following are results thus far in the tournament:

RECORDS FALL AT CHARLOTTE

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Transformed into a carnival of record-breaking, the seventh annual mid-Atlantic swimming meet said goodbye to nine old marks in the opening events here today.

The crack Charleston, S. C., team, which has always won the event, forged into the lead with 46 points, but was followed closely by Charlotte with 42 and Jacksonville, Fla., a newcomer, with 34.

Since Charlotte's team is composed mostly of juniors, who piled up the major points today, it was not considered the chance with the better balanced teams tomorrow and Jacksonville appeared to be Charleston's most serious threat.

Knoxville, Tenn., runner-up last year, was in fourth position with 30 1-2 points. Nineteen teams are entered, six of whom failed to place.

The scorers were: Sumter, S. C., 10; St. Petersburg, Fla., 8 1-2; Richmond, Va., 6; Asheville 6; Tubino Athletic Club, Rome, Ga., 5; Chattanooga, Tenn., 5; High Point, N. C., 2; Lincolnton 1; Wilmington 1.

Peal Is Beaten By Bob Dillard

Amateur leather pushers laid down a rolling barrage of leather at the Cain Street arena Friday night in the first round of the eliminator amateur boxing tournament. Eighteen bouts were run off and fans were handed action from the opening until the final round of the show.

Bob Dillard turned over the dope bucket when he battered out a decisive victory over Frankie Peal, Jack Crow and Paul Byman, light-heavyweights, stole the show. Byman took the decision after three rounds of wind-milling that saw both boys getting hit with everything but the proverbial water bucket.

Not satisfied with the action in the ring they went back to war in the dressing room and it took a couple of policemen to finally end the battle. Tommie Stanford continued to rule as a favorite in the featherweight class. Tommie and Freeman Walker put up one of the finest exhibitions of the show. The referee ruled a draw but the crowd was all for Tommie.

Results of bouts: Winston Mauldin-Max McLendon, draw; Jimmie Stalker-James Dempsey, draw; Roland Johnson-Frank Carlisle, draw; Wesley Riddle-William Dean, draw; Austin Shirkie-Emery Taylor, draw; Tommie Stanford-Freeman Walker, draw; Herbert Green-Bill Harrison, draw; Bruce Dean-Pop Payne, draw; Larry Cantrell lost to Fred Payne; Larry Eastender defeated Jimmie Reel; Robert Cook won over Ray Stanford; Lawton Baker defeated Roy Hays; Harold Wright won over Bruce Seegars; Bob Dillard defeated Frankie Peal; Paul Byman defeated Jack Crow; Paul McMillan defeated Jimmie Upton.

- BRIEF MOMENT -

By S. N. BEHRMAN

WHAT WAS HAPPENING? Abby Tame, beautiful night club singer, and Rodney Deane, son of Franklin Deane, a wealthy banker, were in love. Against the wishes of his family Rod married Abby. The newspapers got the story and play up the fact that "The Night Club Singer Gave Her Man."

This irritates Abby, for she really loves Rod. On reading the newspaper headlines while on board the huge steamer that is to take the newlyweds on their honeymoon to Europe—first stop Paris. Rod, however, in his true love, soon sways her from the fear she has that he will ruin his life by marrying a night club entertainer. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT III

Sig nodded towards the immense living room. "In front of you, Mrs. Deane, you see the scene of many merry parties. At least, they'd better be merry—or I won't come."

Rod walked over the richly-decorated rugs in the room and cast a cursory glance around. "Nice work, Sig," he said enthusiastically. "Nice work."

He turned to Abby. "Like it, sweetheart?"

"Well, it sort of takes my breath away," answered Abby. "I didn't expect to have it already furnished."

"It was darn nice of you, Sig," said Rod. "It would have taken us months to do this."

Sig crossed over to a tall bookcase, then turned to Rod and Abby. "I took the liberties with your Harvard classics—uncut, by the way." He pressed a button, and bookshelves slid slowly into the wall. "Now," continued Sig, "if the audience will be patient, Chandra will show that these are fairies left even in America." By the time he had finished talking, the shelves were completely back and a huge bar was revealed.

Sig went on, "you won't understand this, but we Americans have a quaint custom with the glass and the elbow—"

Rod put on a solemn face. "Very thoughtful, Sig. You've put your heart and soul into this."

And so they went from room to room, exclaiming over the beautiful job that Sig had done.

"Now," said Sig, "that you have passed on everything—" He looked around for a moment, then in a loud voice yelled "Surprise!"

Immediately the two closet doors in the bedroom and the bathroom door opened and some 20 young people tumbled noisily out, laughing and shouting "Surprise!" They surrounded Rod and Abby, making a joyful group.

"Meet the bride and groom, folks!" shouted Sig above the din.

Greetings echoed and re-echoed around the room. When all was over, Sig said, "You're all here."

"Well, what's there to do at home?" asked Rod.

"We'll rest," said Abby, sarcastically, "an hour or two so we can go on some place else."

"What do you mean?"

"That's what home means to you, doesn't it?"

"Well, gosh—four in the afternoon!" Rod gasped.

Abby's tone was packed with meaning. "Yes! That's the time other men are at work."

"So what?"

"Well, get it off your chest," said Rod as they walked into the apartment.

"What's the use? I've tried for four months," answered Abby, "ever since we got back from Europe."

Rod still couldn't realize that Abby was really angry. "Come on, darling. Not the misunderstood wife!"

"Yes. So it looks like it's all been a mistake, doesn't it?"

"Mistake? Marrying me?" Rod was flabbergasted.

"Well, we've certainly let each other in for something, haven't we?"

"What do you mean, Abby?"

"We wanted different things out of marriage, that's all. And it doesn't matter, that's all. What I wanted hasn't even started, and it doesn't look like it ever will."

"I don't understand, darling. What's wrong?"

"Rod, it's been nothing but a merry-go-round so far—running around with different people all the time—drinking—merrymaking, night and noon. I'm tired, Rod. I want to get off the merry-go-round. I want to start being married—if we can't, there's not much use going on, is there?"

"Way didn't you tell me this before?" Rod was serious now.

"I've tried. But you always offered me another drink! I can't live like this. Rod, I used to have my work—now I haven't got anything—not even you. I've got to share you all the time."

"I don't use my vacuum cleaner much, but it's worth having just to keep agents from takin' up my chair cushions an' suckin' dirt out of the cracks to shame me."

quiet again. Rod answered: "Thank you, good people. I'm so overcome I don't know what to do."

"You can introduce us to your new bar, for one thing," said one of the girls.

In a few moments the entire happy group was around the bar.

Life for Abby after that was one long Dry Martini—to be figurative. Liquor, merged with the never ceasing round of frivolity, made a vicious circle for her—a merry-go-round that seemed to have no ending. Home to Rod, apparently, was but a place to hang his toothbrush.

It was during the afternoon that Rod, Abby, Sig and Joan (Joan was Sig's running-around companion) were in Steve's Club Biarritz imbibing freely.

Sig turned to the bartender. "Let's have another round, Tony."

Abby raised a protesting hand. "None for me."

"What's the matter, kid?" asked Steve.

"Nothing—"

Steve was concerned. "Don't you feel well?"

"Sure. I'm just tired, that's all. She turned to Rod. "I want to go home, Rod."

Rod was surprised. "What's the matter, the matter," answered Abby irritably.

"All right, then—have a drink."

"No."

"Now, Abby," said Sig. "I know what you want. Oh, Tony—"

"I want to go home," said Abby angrily. "That's what I want."

"It seems," said Sig, "the lady wants home in no uncertain terms."

"Cut it, Sig," said Rod quietly. Then, to Abby, "All right, darling. If you want to go, come on."

"You don't have to take me—I know the way," Abby was sarcastic. "Don't be silly—come on!"

Then, to the others, "Sorry folks—long, Steve."

There was a strange expression on Steve's face. "So long."

In a few moments Rod and Abby were in their roadster and on the way to their apartment.

"Well, what's there to do at home?" asked Rod.

"We'll rest," said Abby, sarcastically, "an hour or two so we can go on some place else."

"What do you mean?"

"That's what home means to you, doesn't it?"

"Well, gosh—four in the afternoon!" Rod gasped.

"So what?"

"Well, get it off your chest," said Rod as they walked into the apartment.

"You won't have to, honey. I never thought about it, that's all. But things will be different from now on."

Abby was tearful. "Rod! Do you mean that?"

"You know I do—whatever you want goes."

Abby's voice was tremulous. "Oh! Darling!"

Rod managed a smile. "When do we start?"

"Now! Let's spend an evening alone—just to see what it's like." Abby gave a little laugh. "Would you be home?"

"With you, honey?"

"We'll have dinner together—and then stay home. How's that?" Abby was growing enthusiastic.

Abby rang the bell for the butler. "I hope Alfred doesn't drop dead when he knows we want dinner!"

Alfred didn't, though he did pale with surprise. The dinner, however, came off all right. Abby leaned back in her chair and looked across the table at Rod. The conversation had centered around Rod's associates.

Rod interrupted. "No buts. Sig's a hundred per cent. Abby, you don't know him—that's all. That guy Hemmings said it. He said to have stuff was to have grace under pressure—well, that's Sig—grace under pressure."

"Oh, Sig's all right, but—"

Abby looked at Rod, smiling tenderly, loving him for his glibness. Rod continued. "Who'd ever know he didn't have a cent? Whistling in the dark—that's all—"

Abby smiled faintly. "Oh, stop fooling yourself! Sig's no good to anybody in this world—except Sig."

"Now don't run him down, honey—he's too good a friend of mine."

Abby smiled again. "I'm not running him down, dear. He's all right—to have a good time with."

Rod nodded. "You couldn't pay a higher compliment than that."

"Oh, Rod—he's an idler—a drone. You surely don't want to be like him!"

"Why not?"

"Well, you can't spend your life having a good time."

"I can try."

"I'm serious, Rod."

"So am I. What's the sense of working if I don't have to?"

Abby shook her head emphatically. "You do have to. For your self-respect you should be able to say: 'This money is mine. I earned it.'"

"But we don't need any more money."

"No, darling, but I need to be proud of you."

Rod grew thoughtful. Aren't you proud of me now? Is that it?"

"I could be. You could make everybody proud of you."

Rod looked deep into her eyes. "You're all I care about."

"Honey."

Rod's eyes questioned. "Just holding down a job would make that difference."

"All the difference in the world."

"Well—what would you say if I went downtown tomorrow and gave Dad the shock of his life?"

Abby's eyes lit up. "I'd say you were the sweetest thing I know."

Rod grinned. "Then I'm the sweetest thing you know."

"Darling!" Abby laughed with delight. Rod reached across the table and took her hands in his.

"Here's a love note," proclaimed from the foyer. It was Sig and a few of the usual crowd. The noisy group made its way to the dining room, where Sig expressed genuine surprise at finding them there. His face became blank. "Uh—what's on for tonight?"

"Abby and I were—oh—well, sort of staying home," Rod faltered.

"What?" Sig was astonished.

"Well, there wasn't anything special to do, so we—"

"I've tried. But you always offered me another drink! I can't live like this. Rod, I used to have my work—now I haven't got anything—not even you. I've got to share you all the time."

In Georgia's Fields and Streams

By H. A. CARTER

ANDERSON'S HYLIA. In April, 1854, Professor Spencer F. Baird described a tree frog before the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia. He gave it the name Hylia andersonii, and for many years it was regarded as extremely rare. Until 1908, I believe, only six specimens had been recorded. The beginning of more intensive work, however, led to the discovery that instead of being a rare species, it was one restricted in distribution to certain types of environment.

Anderson's hyla, it now appears, is a lover of the pines and cedars of swampy regions. For this reason, Professor Wright, in his "Frogs of the Okefenokee Swamp, Georgia," includes the species as a possible member of the frog clan of that region.

The type locality (that is, the place where the first specimen was taken) for this species is given in Stejneger and Barbour's check list as Anderson, S. C. Since this city is definitely above the geological fall line, it might be postulated that the Anderson hyla will be found to occupy a similar situation in Georgia as regards elevation and latitude, pine and swamp. It appears that this tree frog is a late breeder, having been reported as breeding in May and June in New Jersey, which is evidently the northern limit of its range. This indicates that breeding season of the hypothetical Georgia specimens in late April and early May, continuing for about three months.

Those of you interested in the appearance of this species are advised to consult the excellent color plates in Dickerson's "Frog Book." It is undoubtedly the most beautiful of the lustrous green hylas, presenting a lustrous green back, outlined in white of an irregular pattern, with contrasting brick-red on the sides and lateral surfaces of the limb. No further description will I offer; words cannot do justice to the color of this animal. You must see the picture. Filled with a vaulting ambition, I attempted to copy Dickerson's plate. The miserable result was destroyed. If I cannot copy color, I cannot expect to describe.

I hope to hear of the capture of this frog in Georgia next spring. If I do not succeed in finding it myself, let's see if we cannot extend the known range of the species into a locality known to be fitted to its habit.

Mrs. Ruth H. Carter Addresses Agnes Scott Club on 'New Books'

Mrs. Ruth Hinman Carter was the speaker featured on the August meeting of the Atlanta Agnes Scott Club meeting held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. William Dunn at 2801 Andrews drive, N. W. Mrs. Carter's talk was on the subject "New Books," and she spoke especially of the new fiction and mentioned some leading biographies, among them the new "Marie Antoinette," by Stephen Zweig.

She especially complimented Marjorie Rawlings' "South Moon Under" for its accurate delineation of the southern Florida back country, and the back country Floridians. Mrs. Carter's talk was especially appropriate at this time of year when renewed interest in reading is felt after the relaxation of summer. Miss Rusa Wesley spoke of the radio program for the coming year and urged that all co-operate to make the hour known as the Agnes Scott hour well known.

Following the business meeting refreshments were served in the gardens adjoining the Dunn home to the following members and their friends:

GARMENT MAKERS WILL END STRIKE

Workers in Four States Expected To Return To Work by Monday.

By the Associated Press.

Strikes in the garment, hosiery and coal industries kept government mediators busy in scattered sections of the nation yesterday.

Grover A. Whalen, NRA chief in New York, brought 60,000 striking garment workers and manufacturers closer to an agreement in New York and Governor Gifford Pinchot secured a truce in Pennsylvania's troubled anthracite fields.

After manufacturers accepted the demand of the garment strikers for the principle of collective bargaining, Whalen predicted workers fighting in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Connecticut against the sweatshop and for higher wages, would return to work by Monday.

Unemployed miners, demanding a share of the work in Schuylkill county, Pennsylvania, agreed to cease picketing until Monday at the request of Governor Pinchot.

Meanwhile, the national labor board, created under NRA to settle labor disputes, accepted Pinchot's invitation to send a negotiator to the anthracite region.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Early settlement of the strike of 60,000 garment workers seemed assured today as a result of the mediation efforts of former Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, NRA chief in New York.

The National Association of Dress Manufacturers, recognizing the principle of collective bargaining, paved the way for return of the strikers in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and eastern Pennsylvania by Monday.

Collective bargaining was the leading feature of a four-point compromise plan announced by the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union, which ordered the strike, and contractors at an all-night conference with Whalen.

Meanwhile the strike area between 30th and 40th streets, policed by hundreds of officers, remained quiet. Generally the strike has been one of peace, with no serious incidents.

Whalen, appearing before 400 of the manufacturers, pleaded for ratification of the four-point program—the tentative basis for settlement of the strike.

Collective bargaining, he told the manufacturers, was a part of the guarantee of the national industrial peace act. By recognizing the international union, he said, the manufacturers and jobbers would acquire a strong weapon to be used against communist workers who cause trouble in the industry.

"You have done a fine, a patriotic job and I congratulate you and we'll all go back to work Monday," Whalen told the manufacturers after the ratifying vote was taken.

Plans were made immediately for a conference between strike leaders and contractors to debate the fifth point in the industry, the basis of the agreement on collective bargaining will be perfected.

One of the important points in the agreement is compromise fixing a 35-hour week. David Dubinsky, head of the workers' union, accepted this plan after fighting a futile battle for a 30-hour week.

DISCHARGED MEN BACKED AS ALABAMA MINERS QUIT
JASPER, Ala., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Unsuccessful in their demand that discharged miners be placed back on the pay rolls, between 125 and 250 employees of the Debardeleben Coal Corporation's Hull mine went on strike today.

The miners, organized recently as a local of the United Mine Workers of America, charged that the men have been discharged because they refused to accept the new contract. Debardeleben officials said the discharges were made because of inefficiency.

JOBLESS COAL MINERS DEMAND AND GET FOOD
HARTSHORNE, Okla., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Jobless coal miners and their families marched on the business district of Hartshorne last night, demanding food and clothing.

"You are breaking your way into the penitentiary," Mayor Joe Brown told the crowd, which he estimated at 400 persons.

"That's right, and we'll be fed in the penitentiary," one of the leaders of the march shouted. "We want food, and if you don't give it to us, we're going into the stores and get it."

Citizens hastily organized a committee, visited grocers for supplies and ordered businessmen for cash donations. About $100 was raised. This was turned over to the food stores, and the throng fed in the streets. Many women and children were in the crowd.

There are approximately 4,000 miners in this district, many of whom have not had steady employment for three years.

700 WEAVERS ON STRIKE IN SOUTH CAROLINA CITY
NEWBERRY, S. C., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Approximately 700 textile workers were idle here tonight following a walkout of weavers in the two plants of the Kendall Cotton Mills today.

The mill management said closing of the plants was forced when two shifts of six weavers each walked out. Weavers demanded a reduction of the number of looms per worker from 108 to 80, saying they could not do justice to their work under the increase, which they said was placed in effect Monday.

In turn, the workers said they had agreed to handle 80 looms for $20 per week, although a considerable number of them were making $27.

BAGHDAD, Iraq, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The killing of more than 600 Assyrian Christians in conflicts with the Kurds and the Iraq forces in northern Iraq has climaxed an international situation in which Great Britain, as the former mandatory power, over Iraq has been moved to take a hand.

A total of 315 bodies have been found at the village of Sinel and 300 more were discovered in different places in the vicinity of Doguk, following Kurdish raids on Assyrian communities.

The British government offered a asylum in Cyprus to the Assyrian leader, Mar Shimun, who with his father and brother was deported today by the Iraq government. It was charged that he was responsible for a recent Assyrian outbreak which led to the deadly conflicts.
